about onelotus james

Onelotus is my web design and development portfolio. I create and implement websites, identities and web applications for both commercial and private clients alike*.

My unique view of Internet media design & development allows me to continually destroy conventionality, delivering dynamic artworks to my clients.

I conceptualize, sculpt and present artworks on the Internet for all to experience and enjoy. Belief in the ideal; "quality over quantity" allows me to strive to make each website the best it can be, this is the reason I don't produce any "run of the mill" or "cookie cutter" designs. I push the medium as far as possible while keeping an easy to use feel and functionality to my work, this important mix of uniqueness and user-friendliness is what makes my solution-fu strong.

* I'm always looking for new work, but I only accept one project at a time, so please contact me for availability.

I started creating websites as a hobby in 2001, decided to go pro in 2003, and never looked back. I enjoy what I do to a degree that could be called obsession—without exaggeration. I can't imagine doing anything else with my life. I love what I do and I believe that is exactly why I'm good at it.

I married my best friend, and together we have three sons. We all live in beautiful Middle Tennessee with a few animals and an abundance of amazing visual landscapes, seriously gorgeous here.

I love to solve problems.
